Mr. Cooper is a comparatively new-comer in the city, having joined the Star staff last May, coming here from the San Francisco Chronicle.

He has made many friends, however, who are extending their congratulations. The date for the wedding has not yet been announced, but will take place, it is understood, in the very near future.

Last night saw some very novel features and one of the largest and most enthusiastic crowds that have ever gathered together in Honolulu was to be seen at the Seaside. The dancing floor was taxed to its fullest capacity until the wee small hours, while the effective display of the fire canoes filled the crowd with admiration at the spectacular and beautiful panorama. So many requests were made for a repetition that Manager Church has promised to give one in the near future. These constant innovations at the Seaside make it the most popular resort in town.

Colonel and Mrs. Samuel Johnson will take a cottage at the Seaside in a day or so for the summer, and will be a welcome addition to the colony there.

In the evening the dining lanai was thronged with different dining parties, who repeatedly requested encores from Mrs. Alapai and the Kaai Quintet. The tables under the hau trees, as well as the settees on the beach, were well patronized until a late hour. Fred Church is to be congratulated on the unquestioned success of his efforts to make the Seaside a popular local resort.

The number of guests was large, including many of the leading men and women of Hawaii, the majority of whom have been at one time or another in the classes presided over by the venerable teacher. During the evening some excellent music was rendered by Mr. Trowbridge, precentor of the San Francisco Trinity church choir, and Frederick Hastings, each singing a number of selections, the former accompanied by Mrs. Sheppard of Washington, D. C., a violin obligato being rendered also by Miss Violet Damon. Those who assisted Mrs. Mills in receiving were Mrs. S. M. Damon, Mrs. B. F. Dillingham, Mrs. A. J. Campbell, Mrs. Gerrit Wilder, Mrs. W. H. Babbitt, Mrs. Charles Kluegel, the Misses Damon and Miss Fannie Madison.

A large number of society folks spent the afternoon of the Fourth watching the splendid polo match at Moanalua. Our Alteration and Clearance Sale of the past week has been so successful that actually we have been too busy to properly prepare this ad. for the coming week.

"There's a reason" for this heavy business,—several of them. "Good Goods" is one of them. "Proper Prices" is another. "Sales that are Sales" is still another.

For the coming week, we are still offering many of the bargains of last week, while every day will see new goods unpacked and put in stock.
